

Bio: Gaby Siegel

Born in South Africa, Ms Siegel started playing piano by ear at three years old. Her instant passion for the piano had her earn music qualifications from Royal Schools of Music, The University of South Africa (UNISA), University of Pretoria, and Nelson Mandela University. Over the years she received various diplomas and awards as pianist, organist, and violinist. She earned her Master's Degree in Music Performance (Pipe Organ).

Ms Siegel has performed as soloist with orchestras, part of ensembles and special music productions. She loves session work in recording studios, playing contemporary worship with bands, and playing for special events at hotels, resorts, and private events. Her repertoire for gigs is all her own arrangements, including classics, pop, light jazz, contemporary and movie soundtracks/theme songs. She was honored to have been rehearsal pianist twice for Christian Contemporary Artist, Michael W Smith, for two shows at the Kennedy Center in Washington DC.

Ms Siegel always focusses on integrating music theory, aural skills and technique as students learn. This always results in well-rounded musicians who understand, and who can create on their own!
