Nathaniel Maxwell, a native of Everett, Pennsylvania, is a piano faculty member at The Music Academy of Kansas City. An active performer and collaborator, he has performed in different venues across the US and in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. His musical background is quite varied, with extensive experience in composition, trumpet, and conducting in addition to his piano studies. Currently, he is pursuing joint studies in piano performance at the doctoral level and composition at the masters level at the Conservatory at the University of Missouri-Kansas City. He holds degrees from Duke University in both mathematics and music, and the University of Oklahoma in piano performance and pedagogy. Nathaniel has previously held teaching positions at the University of Oklahoma, The New School for Music Study in Kingston, New Jersey, and the Fine Arts Conservatory of the Academy of Classical Christian Study in Moore, Oklahoma. In his free time, he enjoys cycling, hiking, and running, as well as making homemade pizza.
